

November 21, 2018

Dear valued organicgirl customer:

We wanted to provide you with an update of where we are in removing any reference to baby romaine on these three blend flavors:

- 50/50 blend
- baby spring mix
- I heart baby kale

that currently have “may contain” on the label. As we updated yesterday, we have removed baby romaine from the salads, and all organicgirl products with a use by date of Dec 6th, 2018 and later will not contain romaine.

We do understand the concern about package labels, and currently have new labels being printed and rushed to our plants for the 5oz and 10oz sizes. Assuming all goes according to plan, we will be able to ship the three flavors noted with new US domestic labels that do not reference baby romaine from all our facilities on Wednesday, November 28th. We will update on the availability of 1# items as soon as we have that information. For bilingual labels, the ship date is Friday, November 30th.

In addition, we will be putting a sticker on the items (example below) that reinforces that no romaine is in the blend.

On Monday, November 26th, we will confirm this plan is on schedule, and will work with you to get the three items back on your purchase orders.

We appreciate your loyalty and support and will continue to work hard to meet your expectations.

Sincerely,

John McPherson
